

Five Year Bachelor's to Master's Program Conditional Protocol

Academic

Students participating in this track will remain in good academic standing, maintaining an overall GPA of 3.3 (on a 4.0 scale) and a GPA of 3.5 in CSD core courses. Any student falling below these standards at any time will be placed on conditional status. A student placed on conditional status has one academic semester to improve their overall GPA and/or CSD core GPA to required standards.

Speech, Language, and Hearing Screening

Students in this program will participate in a speech, language, and hearing screening by the end of their second semester. Any student who fails to participate in the speech, language, and hearing screening by the deadline will be placed on conditional status for one academic semester during which he/she will be expected to complete said requirement to regain good standing. Should the student fail to pass the speech, language, and hearing screening, they will be required to partake in the assessment and/or treatment recommendations made by the University Speech and Hearing Clinical Supervisor.

Progress Interview

Students in this program will complete a successful interview with faculty serving on the Five Year Bachelor's to Master's Program Committee. If a student does not successfully complete the progress interview, he/she will be placed on conditional status to improve upon identified areas of concern by the faculty panel.

Upon completion of the conditional semester and all requirements are met and satisfactory the student will return to good standing. Should the student fail to meet the required standards during the conditional semester, he/she will forfeit their guaranteed seat in the graduate program and will instead finish out under the provisions of the traditional four-year program and complete the customary graduate application process.

*If a student falls out of the program, he/she cannot re-apply for admittance onto this track. The student may be able to complete his/her undergraduate career in three years as previously accepted however, the guaranteed seat in the graduate program will be forfeited and the student will continue with the customary graduate application process.
